INTENTION TO IMPACT MAKER

HOW THE BEST LEADERS IN THE WORLD ARE USING SOCIAL IMPACT TO BOOST THEIR BOTTOM LINE

You've heard the call for 'impact' from the mouths of CEOs and most of us believe that impact is reserved for what we do within business hours. Yet, 70% of Chief Executives claim that it's their commitment to social impact programs that improve their financial performance. In other words, the impact we make outside of our cubicle walls is what's driving much of the corporate success. Get ready to embark on a transformative journey as we learn how we can truly make an impact in the world beyond business. In this motivating keynote, we'll explore the dynamic realm of purpose-driven leadership—a force that propels Impact Makers to create extraordinary social impact. You'll learn how a clear sense of purpose doesn't just light the way, it fuels an unlimited well of passion that can change the trajectory of people's lives... and, that's why we're all here.

As the Chief Operating Officer for a nonprofit organization, along with being the founder of a nonprofit herself, Jen Buck is committed to being an Impact Maker. Whether it's working in the humanitarian aid sector abroad, leading U.S. Congressional campaigns as the Chief of Staff for marginalized candidates, or contributing in her community to improve the lives of its residents, Jen is committed to utilizing every resource she can to make a difference so that she can leave the world better than she found it. Jen Buck isn't just talking about being a Maverick, Renegade, and Impact Maker, she's living it every day.
