

Nikki Greenberg, World-leading futurist

The way people live, work, play and interact with the physical world has become increasingly digitised, and will continue to exponentially evolve into the future.

Our guest speaker today is a world-leading futurist working at the intersection of physical space and cyber space. In her work as an architect and technology strategist, she designs the experiential digital layer in places across cities.

Today Nikki is going to show us how you can capitalise on the opportunities in this new digital economy by embracing emerging technologies, and acting more like a digital-native Gen-Z.

Please welcome world-leading futurist, Nikki Greenberg!
